Mr. Nyland from Doctor's Hospital

MR. NYLAND: Are you all set? All right with the tape recorder - now? All right. Testing. Testing. Testing.

Dear People. I wished I could be there tonight. The whole idea is predicated for the fact that I sit there in front and that we talk about Work and experiences. It is sometimes a little difficult.

It is not that I wish it different. I do not know even if I've the right to expect it. One must take things as they come and then grow and sometimes leave you flat and incomprehensible why you should have experiences of a different kind. It's a question of adaptation of course. Have enough time, have food for uh thinking about it. I don't know if we get very far by just describing it. I just want you to have a good discussion all together. I, sometimes, I feel very lonesome. How long this kind of phase has to last I do not know. And you can hear from my voice that it is a little weak once in a while. That is partly because I want to emphasize what I believe is important and the other things, you might say, will be added to it.

Have a good evening all together. Just simple, honest exchange about your life, not making up things. Just I would almost say entering the kingdom of heaven, if one knows where to find the door.

I just want to be with you and illustrating how often I am trying to be present with all of you.

If for some reason or other it cannot be taken as a cassette, then simply we translate it and you'll get it later. You've got to read it.

But you know I love you. I wished for all of us the possibility of an understanding in simplicity, but mostly to try to remain honest.

(And it has) harmonious, I should - I will have it experience -- experienced. (When it has)

The reason why the voice is a little covered up is because that the doctor has told me not to interrupt a flow of energy, and maybe it is also an illustration of the constancy one should wish for.

Goodbye, People. Have a good meeting.

That's all.

(Pláy it back.)
